

January is for

CERVICAL HEALTH AWARENESS

According to the National Cancer Institute, more than 12,000 women in the U.S. will be diagnosed with cervical cancer this year and about 4,000 of these women will die.

Most women with an HPV infection will not develop cervical cancer, but it's very important to have regular screening tests, including Pap and HPV tests as recommended.

Cervical cancer is preventable if precancerous cell changes are detected and treated early, before cervical cancer develops. Cervical cancer usually takes years to progress.

- A branch clinic of that Walter Reed National Military Medical Center

Information from: <http://www.nccc-online.org/>